

Garment specification

Using the Garment Specification Sheet

This sheet should be given to the factory whenever:

- A. You are requiring them to make a sample, or
- B. When you issue a docket.

This will enable the factory, and the production staff in your studio, to know exactly what is supposed to happen with the construction and trims for each style.

Best Practice

- Create the Garment Specification Sheet before you issue a sample or production docket. Attach a copy to the sample and the docket and keep a copy in your file attached to the costing sheet.
- If requirements or components change, don't forget to issue a new sheet to the factory.
